

Director

Make a difference for transport users

Salary: £70,000 plus competitive pension

Transport matters. Everyday millions of us travel in and around London and the quality of our journey has a major impact on how we feel and what we achieve. London TravelWatch is the voice of London's travelling public, speaking up for all those who travel in London and influencing decision makers to improve that experience.

This is an exciting opportunity to join us and lead the team, positioning us at the forefront of decision-making as London tackles the transport challenges facing it as an expanding city. We have established a new partnership with our sister organisation Transport Focus which will strengthen our collective resources and are looking for a dynamic communicator, changemaker and leader with a passion to make a difference for London.

Reporting to the joint chief executive of the two organisations, and acting as the London Director, you will be the principal spokesperson for London TravelWatch and will lead an integrated team of policy, casework and communications staff to develop strategy and influence change in the capital. Your role will be to join up all the great work the organisation does to have maximum impact with our stakeholders.
